CASSELL-LEONARD.

Fashionable and Happy Marriage at the Episcopal Church Last Evening.

Followed by a Brilliant and Joyous Reception at Walter's Armory.

There was another unusual stir in Decatur society circles last evening, occasioned by the fashionable wedding at St. John's Episcopal church—a marriage in which the REPUBLICAN proprietors and attaches took a special interest, inasmuch as the bridegroom has been connected with this office almost continuously for seven years as foreman of the press room, a position which he still holds. Charley, or "Pick," as we generally call him, is one of us—a member of the REPUBLICAN family, in fact—and we rejoice with him in his capture of one of Decatur's fairest and most accomplished daughters as his companion through life's pathway.

THE CEREMONY.

As the handsomely printed invitations announced—and there were 250 issued—the ceremony which united in marriage Miss KATIE E. LEONARD, eldest daughter of Professor and Mrs. R. B. Leonard, and Mr. CHARLES H. CASSELL, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cassell, was solemnized by the rector, Rev. Walter H. Moore, at St. John's Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock, and the beautifully decorated church was completely filled with a large and fashionably attired company of friends.

Near the altar were tastefully arranged baskets of fresh flowers and growing plants, and on the sill of each window along both sides of the church were placed willow baskets filled with cut flowers that filled the room with sweet perfume.

The enlivening strains of Mendelssohn's beautiful wedding march, splendidly rendered by Prof. Goodman's full orchestra, announced the entrance of the bride party, which marched up the broad aisle to the altar in the following order: Chas. A. Ewing, Brock Irwin, Charles Leonard and Will Muzzey, ushers; Misses Ella Race, Florence Adams, Louise Tanner and Mollie Beall, flower girls; Mr. Robert B. Ormsby and Miss Minnie La Roe, attendants; Mrs. R. B. Leonard escorted by the bridegroom; and last came the bride escorted by her father, Prof. Leonard.

The beautiful Episcopal rite ceremony was used and was spoken distinctly by the officiating clergyman, the responses being clearly and promptly uttered. At the proper moment the father stepped forward and placed the hand of the bride in that of the groom, when the final words were spoken and the ceremony concluded with an impressive prayer.

The bride was tastefully attired in a beautiful dress of India mull, with an overdress of Spanish lace. She wore the conventional veil and full length train.

The ornaments were natural flowers. The bridesmaid was attired in white, as were also the four flower girls. The bride party left the altar preceded by Mr. Cassell and bride, who passed out of the church and were conveyed in carriages to the reception hall.

A BRILLIANT RECEPTION.

The reception was held at the armory of the Decatur Guards, where had gathered about 150 invited guests. The bride party entered the hall, while the Decatur Band, of which the bride's father is a member, played a beautiful march. After passing around the hall several times, the party stopped beneath a large horseshoe formed with fresh pine leaves, suspended from the gas fixture, near which hung a handsome cage containing a warbling canary. The music having ceased, the company pressed forward and extended warm congratulations to the newly wedded pair. So large was the gathering that nearly an hour's time was consumed in this interesting feature of the joyous occasion, and after all had come forward, the orchestra filled the spacious hall with enlivening music as the company promenade and conversed together. An abundance of choice refreshments were served to the entire company, the bride party being seated around a table prepared for them. Following the discussion of the refreshments, the company engaged in terpsichorean pleasures to the music of Prof. Goodman's orchestra, the grand march being led by Mr. Cassell and bride.

The first number was a quadrille, which was followed by a waltz, the Lancers, a waltz and "waltz home," the armory being darkened before 12 o'clock.

Soon after 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Cassell took their departure from the reception hall for the Union depot, and at 12:15 this morning they left the city for Chicago, where they will remain for a week before returning to Decatur. They will reside in pleasant apartments, and enter at once upon the mysteries of housekeeping.

The bride, as is well-known to most of our readers, is a young lady who possesses many enviable accomplishments, besides being a great favorite in social circles. She has taken part in numerous home entertainments, and is now leading soprano of the Presbyterian church choir. Hosts of Decatur and Boston friends will join with the REPUBLICAN in wishing the bride and her chosen husband all manner of good luck in their new relation in life.

THE BRIDE'S PARAPHRASE.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents, of which the following is a list:

Handsome chamber suite, from father of the bride.

Pair of heavy blankets from mother of the bride.

Large glass bread plate, silver handle, Mrs. John Cassell, mother of the groom.

Fairly ornate table, Chas. Leonard, brother of the bride.

500 in gold from the bridegroom.

Handsome pair of 14-buttoned kid gloves and silk handkerchiefs, from Boston, Robert Ormsby, cousin of the bride.

Brilliant silver and gold card receiver, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bartholomew.

Baskets of fine flowers, Miss Minnie La Roe.

Beautifully decorated china fruit set, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Lake.

Handsome rose-bed perfume holder, Mrs. M. Gamble.

BREWER THE BAKER.

Another Proof of his Ability to Prepare Premium Party Cakes.

While passing A. O. Brewer's bakery, at No. 25 North Main street last evening, our reporter was favored with a glimpse at three of the beautiful cakes prepared for the Cassell-Leonard reception. One was a very large pound cake, the other a fruit cake, and the other "Angel Food," and each was as handsome and attractive as it was possible for the experienced skill of Mr. Brewer's St. Louis cake baker to make them. All were most beautifully ornamented with artistic frosting and flower designs, and those who viewed them pronounced them the prettiest they had ever seen. Mr. Brewer makes a specialty of cake baking for weddings and parties, and will fill orders at any time on short notice, on reasonable terms. There is no need of Decatur people sending away from home to have cakes baked when they can be procured at our very doors. Mr. Brewer also has a first-class bread baker in his employ, and two men are at work night and day to supply his rapidly growing trade. Brewer bread and cakes are justly famous. Give him a call at 25 North Main street.

Fay Templeton and the "Mascotte."

The Fay Templeton comic opera company gave "The Mascotte" at Rockford Tuesday night and made a big hit. The Register gave the company a half-column notice and praised the vocalists without stint. Of the costuming the Register said:

As for the costumes they were simply superb and to claim that they were made by Dazian direct from Paris plates, was apparently well grounded. They were all elegant, both the principals and chorus alike, and there were three changes during the evening, each successive change excelling the previous costume. We venture to say no large company with such an uniformly unique and beautiful wardrobe was ever seen on Brown's Hall stage before. We were more interested and enjoyed the performance more thoroughly than anything that has been on the boards for many a day.

At the opera house Saturday evening. Popular prices. Don't stay away.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Newton A. Murray, of Valley Falls, Kan., who is visiting friends here, paid us a call to-day.

Rev. James Young, the newly-appointed U. B. pastor of the Elwin circuit, has left Mt. Pulaski with his family, and is now in charge of his new field of labor.

David Rider, formerly a conductor on the P. & E., has been appointed general superintendent of the P. & P. U. railway temporarily, vice J. R. Hastings, resigned.

Rev. Curtis Powell, the new preacher on the Decatur circuit, paid us a pleasant call last evening, in company with Mr. Frank A. Brown. He is here with his family, and now occupies the parsonage vacated by Rev. Armentrout.

Mt. Pulaski Citizen: Rev. W. C. Lacy, of Decatur, arrived last Thursday with his family and was received by his members who had prepared a nice supper at his home, where they all enjoyed themselves and had a good time. We welcome Mr. Lacy to our Mt. and wish him a successful year.

Frank L. Heaver, advance agent for the Marie Prescott dramatic company, is in Decatur to-day arranging for the appearance of his troupe at the opera house on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week. "The Countess" will be given on the first night and "Ingomar" on the second evening.

To Property Holders.

I have a number of applications for farms and city property in this county, and desire all owners of farms and real estate of any kind to come to my office and register the same before November the 1st, at which time I expect to issue a regular Monthly Real Estate Journal, in which I will extensively advertise throughout this and Eastern States. All property registered at my office Free of Charge. No fee until purchase is made. If you cannot come in person, send description and price by mail. Conveyancing done at my office.
